With a strong foundation in information technology and a specialisation in data analytics and insights, Randi brings over a decade of experience in enabling business functions digitally. His Bachelor's degree in Information Technology, with a major in IT Security and Net Centric Computing from the Auckland University of Technology, complements his professional journey thus far. Randi's key strengths lie in maintaining a customer-centric approach, focusing on the larger strategic vision while being detail-oriented. As he transitions into the insurance sector and integrates into Rothbury, his enthusiasm for embracing the variety in his current role and challenges of a new industry excites him.

Randi's commitment to minimizing downtime and his passion for making data-driven, commercially viable decisions supported by his problem-solving capabilities will set him up for success here at Rothbury. His approach is always geared towards empowering businesses with the digital tools and insights necessary to excel in the modern marketplace with customer advocacy and obsession in mind.
